Health and Safety Induction Guide

Welcome

Every new starter completes a health and safety induction within their first week. This guide summarises what you need to know about keeping yourself and your colleagues safe at work.

Emergency evacuation

In the event of a fire alarm, leave the building by the nearest exit and do not use the lifts. The Amber Corridor evacuation route on level three leads to the north stairwell and the assembly point in the courtyard. Floor wardens wear high-visibility vests and will confirm that each area is clear.

First aid

Trained first aiders are listed on the noticeboard beside each kitchen. First aid kits are kept at reception and on every floor. All injuries, however minor, must be entered in the incident register on the same day.

Ergonomics

Adjust your chair and screen so that your posture is comfortable. Take a short break from the screen at least once an hour, and ask your manager for an ergonomic assessment if you experience discomfort.

Additional guidance

Staff are expected to follow the arrangements for health and safety induction guide and to ask their manager when they are unsure how a rule applies to their situation. New starters are introduced to health and safety induction guide during induction, and a reminder is issued whenever the arrangements change. Questions about health and safety induction guide can be raised with the relevant team through the intranet, and answers of general interest are added to the guidance.

Review and ownership

Questions about health and safety induction guide can be raised with the relevant team through the intranet, and answers of general interest are added to the guidance. Staff are expected to follow the arrangements for health and safety induction guide and to ask their manager when they are unsure how a rule applies to their situation. The owner of health and safety induction guide reviews it at least once a year and records any change, together with the date and the reason for the change.